READER 1: Long ago in the northern mountains of Japan on the island of Hokkaido,

READER 2: there lived two vain and jealous goblins.

READER 3: One goblin was the color of the summer sky. He was the color...

ALL: BLUE!

READER 4: The other goblin was the color of the setting sun. He was the color...

ALL: RED!

READER 5: Day in and day out, the goblins argued about who was the most handsome. The blue goblin said,

3/BLUE: "I am the most handsome goblin in the world because I am the color..."

ALL: BLUE!"

READER 1: The red goblin did not agree. He argued,

4/RED: "I am the most handsome goblin in the world because I am the color..."

ALL: RED!"

READER 2: Both goblins were very proud. They were especially proud of their wonderful magic noses because, when each nose was properly

READER 3: wiggled, each nose could

READER 4: stretch...and stretch...and STRETCH!

READER 5: Each nose could

READER 1: grow...and grow...and GROW,

READER 2: until each nose could extend many leagues, many kilometres, many miles across the countryside.

READER 3: Of course the blue goblin thought his nose was, by far, the most handsome because it was the color...

ALL: BLUE!

READER 4: And the red goblin thought his nose was the most handsome because it was the color...

ALL: RED!

READER 5: One day the blue goblin was resting on top of a mountain when he smelled a very sweet smell coming from - somewhere. He said,

3/BLUE: "Ah yes! My wonderful magical nose
