

NARRATOR: Long ago in the northern mountains of Japan on the island of Hokkaido, there lived two vain and jealous goblins. One goblin was the color of the summer sky. He was the color...

1-6: BLUE!

NARRATOR: The other goblin was the color of the setting sun. He was the color...

7-12: RED!

NARRATOR: Day in and day out, the goblins argued about who was the most handsome. The blue goblin said, "I am the most handsome goblin in the world because I am the color..."

1-6: BLUE!"

NARRATOR: The red goblin did not agree. He argued, "I am the most handsome goblin in the world because I am the color..."

7-12: RED!"

NARRATOR: Both goblins were very proud. They were especially proud of their wonderful magic noses because, when each nose was properly wiggled, each nose could

CHILD 1: stretch...and stretch...and STRETCH!

NARRATOR: Each nose could

CHILD 2: grow...and grow...and GROW,

NARRATOR: until each nose could extend many leagues, many kilometres, many miles across the countryside.

Of course the blue goblin thought his nose was, by far, the most handsome because it was the color...

1-6: BLUE!

NARRATOR: And the red goblin thought his nose was the most handsome because it was the color...

7-12: RED!

NARRATOR: One day the blue goblin was resting on top of a mountain when he smelled a very sweet smell coming from - somewhere.

He said, "Ah yes! My wonderful magical nose smells something sweet. My nose can smell sweet smells from all over Japan. My nose is the most wonderful nose in the world because it is the color...

1-6: BLUE!
